Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 06 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers easing overnight. Sunny spells Monday, heavy showers for some.

This Evening and Tonight:
Isolated evening showers are possible, with these locally heavy but gradually easing and drifting northeast, with many areas staying dry. Some low cloud is possible in upland areas for a time, although clear spells should become more commonplace later. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Monday:
On the cloudy side initially, and perhaps periodically later in some coastal districts. Increasingly warm with sunny spells, but heavy showers also developing, perhaps locally prolonged and thundery with hail. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Mainly fine and rather warm through this period. Cloud probably increasing after midweek, especially in the west, with the odd spot of rain here at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.